Megapixels & Frame rates VS Safety & Security

Τα πολλά Megapixels και framerate ΔΕΝ κάνουν την διαφορά...

The MPEG group had this to say about the use of these codecs in Security.

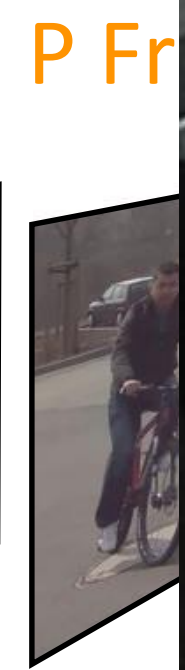

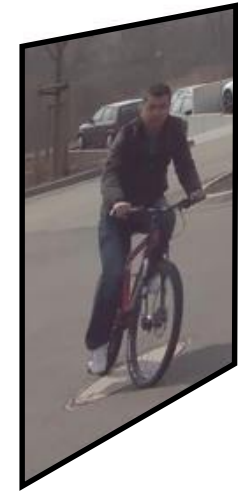

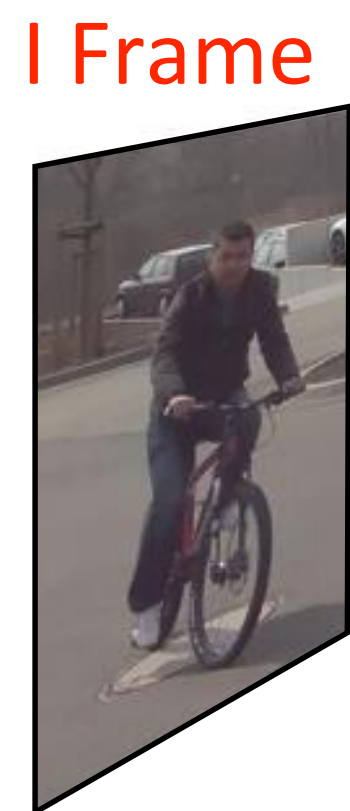

“Generally speaking it is an unsafe policy to use these codecs for highly sensitive applications. For example, when taking a recording of an event and requiring a high resolution single frame (as might be the requirement in many circumstances) the possibility of achieving this with MPEG/H264 is unlikely – street scenes, shopping mall and anywhere single frame close identification is required should NOT be recorded using MPEG/H264 codecs. It should be noted that the MPEG committee is mainly concerned with video and audio for entertainment”.⁵
